

Malak's Morning at Karnak

English Mood Academy

yellow = new words red = prepositional phrases of place & time

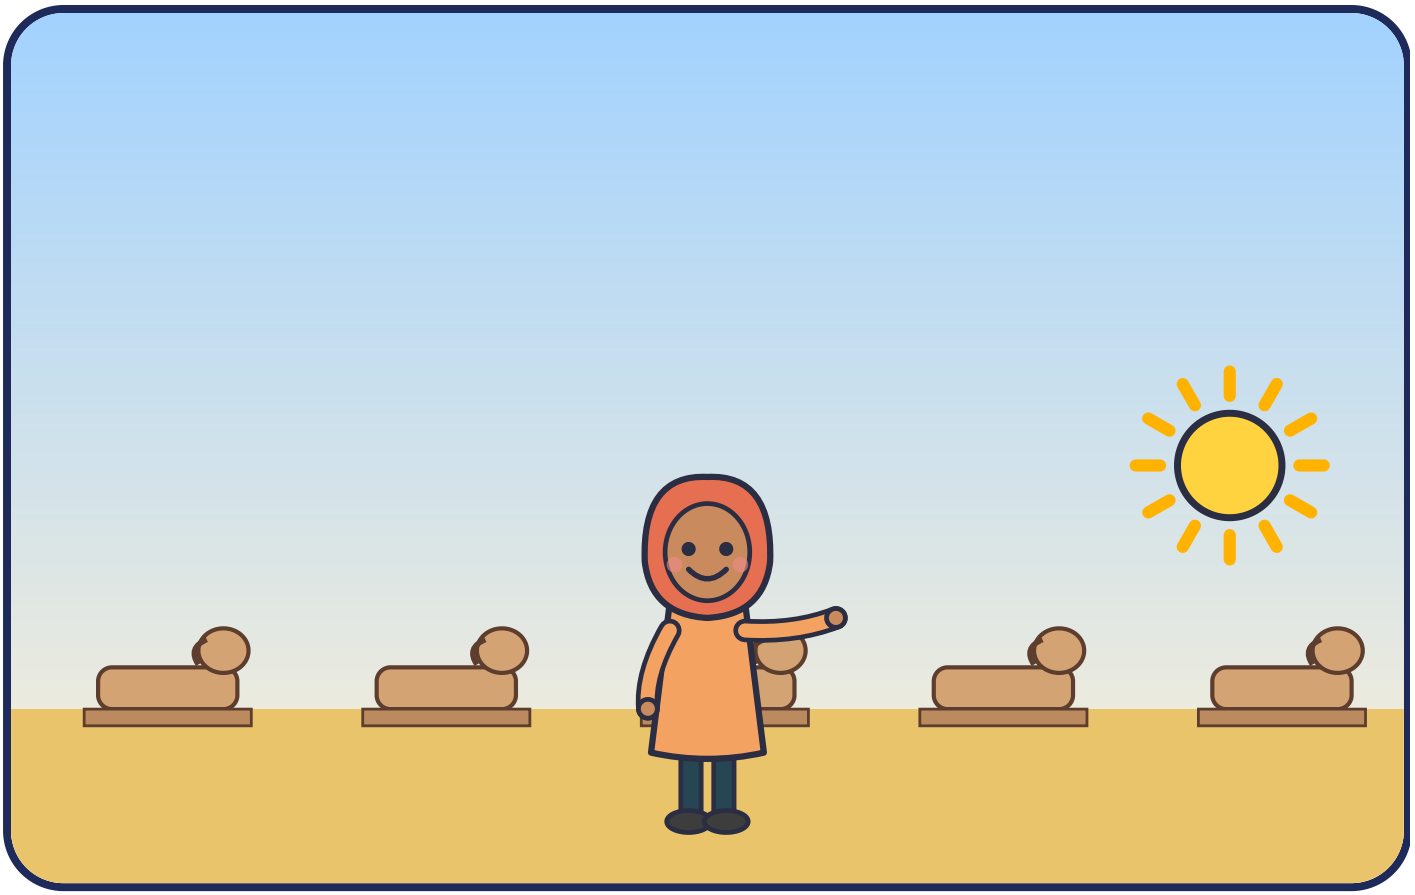

On Friday morning, Malak's class arrived in Luxor. She was the class representative, so she carried the list of names.

They met their guide at the entrance of Karnak Temple at six o'clock, before the tour groups came.

In the early morning, the avenue was silent. A long line of ram-headed sphinxes stretched along the avenue.

Each sphinx was carved from sandstone. "They have stood here for thousands of years," the guide said.

Inside the great hall, Malak looked up at the massive columns. She felt very small in the hall.

On the walls, she saw hieroglyphics. Kings' names were inscribed on every column.

"Karnak was built from the Middle Kingdom to the Ptolemaic era," the guide explained. "Each pharaoh added something during his reign."

"History is accumulated here in layers. Some messages are encoded in symbols that only experts can read."

Malak stood between two columns. She thought about the devotion of the workers who built this place throughout history.

"These monuments are our heritage," she said. "We must preserve them for the next generation."

They left Karnak by noon and took a boat across the river. Their bus left on time, and Malak wrote about her day on the bus.

The End 🏛️

Old stones keep our memory; we keep the stones.

الحجارة القديمة بتحفظ ذاكرتنا، وإحنا لازم نحافظ عليها.
