Suddenly, Laila stares in awe. Hundreds of glowing jellyfish are dancing around her. "Glow-producing animals make their own light," Aunt Mona explains. "It's mind-blowing!"

Their cameras detect a huge shadow. It is a heart-stopping moment. A whale shark swims heart-stoppingly close, looking for small fish as prey. The view is awe-inspiring.

Then they find a turtle caught in an old net. "Turtles are endangered," says Aunt Mona. "Overfishing and old nets put them in deep water, literally and figuratively!"

Laila carefully cuts the net. The turtle swims away. "We can't turn a blind eye to this," she says. "Conservation is everyone's job." It is a heart-warming moment.

Back on the shore, they see a storm-crashed boat near the roaring waves. Nearby, baby turtles hatch and run to the sea. "Amazing!" Laila laughs.

That night Laila writes a well-written story about the trip. It begins with a quotation, shows a conflict between people and the sea, and has a great development.

"The ocean still keeps many secrets," she writes. "We can't afford to lose them. Protecting the sea is a never-ending mission."
