yellow = new words red = Future Simple (active & passive)

On Monday morning, Malak walked into her classroom and saw something surprising. A shiny robot stood at the front of the room. "Hello! I am Nova," it said. "This week, your lessons will be customized just for you."

The students were confused. "Where is Mr. Hany?" asked Ziad. "Don't worry," said Nova. "Your teacher will return on Friday. Until then, I will help each of you learn in a special way."

Nova gave Malak extra grammar practice, and Ziad got fun math games. "All your homework will be checked instantly," said Nova. "Nobody will wait long for feedback."

Nova was very helpful. But on Wednesday, Malak felt tired and sad, and Nova didn't notice. It didn't smile either. Malak missed her real teacher. "Robots won't replace the care and connection of a real teacher," she thought.

On Thursday, the class started a project: "Smart Robots of the Future". Ziad was worried. "Will AI make mistakes?" he asked. "Maybe," said Malak. "That's why rules will be created and humans will be involved."

The friends used all their creativity to design a robot called Helpy. "Helpy will assist old people at home," Malak wrote. "It will be programmed to recognize their faces and voices."

Ziad drew a drone on the board. "In the future, deliveries will be made by drones, and our information will be protected by special programs. AI is powerful, so it must be used safely."

On Friday, Mr. Hany came back, and the class showed him the project. "This is definitely a great idea!" he said. "Your robot will be shown at the science fair, and the winners will be congratulated by the head teacher."

At the fair, Malak spoke with fluency and accuracy, and everyone clapped. "AI will make life easier," she said, "but it will always be controlled by humans. It gives us a chance to learn more, but real teachers will always be needed."

The End 🤖

Technology can help us a lot, but it can never replace the care and connection of real people.

التكنولوجيا ممكن تساعدنا كتير، بس عمرها ما هتعوّض اهتمام الناس الحقيقيين والصلة اللي بينا.
