Nour was a Prep 2 student and a true digital native. She loved her smartphone, funny memes and every new trend. Her screen time was more than six hours a day!

Nour and her grandfather had a lot in common. They both liked stories and robots. Her cousin Yara lived far apart in Aswan, but video calls helped them connect every evening.

One night, while Nour was chatting with Yara, a strange message appeared: "You won a free phone! Click here." Nour clicked the link and typed her password. It was a big mistake.

The next morning, she couldn't open her account. Someone had hacked it and posted silly photos with her name. Nour felt upset and frustrated. "Everyone will see this forever!" she cried.

Her mother didn't shout. She showed empathy and said, "This is a challenge, not the end. We need courage and determination." Together they called the platform for help.

They looked for every clue. The fake link was the first trace in her digital footprint. Nour changed her settings properly and chose a complex password with letters, numbers and symbols.

At first, it was hard and she wanted to quit. But Yara encouraged her to keep going. Slowly, Nour began to improve. She learned to protect her privacy and to limit her screen time.

A month later, Nour gave a talk at school about staying secure online. A big crowd of students clapped. She overcame her fear, and her grandfather felt very proud of her.
